Who is Mark

Mark Montini is an internationally-recognized speaker, consultant, and entrepreneur in the areas of communication, marketing, and politics.

He has worked with CEO's, Members of Congress, Members of Parliament, and leaders from four continents, 33 countries, and all 50 states.

Mark's diverse record of accomplishments at a young age speaks for itself. At just 30 years of age, he has:

- Built two successful companies: one traditional and one eCommerce.
- Served as president of a national political organization, during which time annual contributions increased from $100,000 to almost $6,000,000.
- Served as vice president of a multi-million dollar non-profit organization, achieving record results in every measurable category.
- Worked on the staff of a United States Congressman and on successful campaigns for the U.S. House and Senate.

A renowned speaker and trainer, Mark was named as one of the top three speakers in the world by the International Communication Industry Association. He has delivered his practical, information-packed presentations to audiences from 33 countries and all 50 states. Mark combines humor, energy, and passion to keep audiences entertained and, most important, motivated to take action. A recent audience member wrote:

"If Mark doesn't light your fire, your wood is wet."

His work has been featured in the New York Times, Washington Post, USA Today, Washington Times, Rocky Mountain News, and Milwaukee Sentinel-Journal. He has appeared on the O'Reilly Factor, Special Report with Brit Hume, and is a regular guest on radio programs across America.

Mark has authored over 30 training seminars, 125 professional articles, and is considered by many to be one of America's brightest leaders in the areas of communication, marketing, and politics.

Mark grew up in Colorado and attended college in Iowa, majoring in Communications. He worked his way through college while playing on the college golf team. Mark, his wife Marybeth, and two children live in Georgia.
